OBJECTIVES OF STUDY

- A comprehensive analysis on AMT consistently builds upon past researchers so as to guide investigation into the triple-crown AMT implementation and to work out those most crucial structure and strategic parts that will create a firm ready to use AMT in enhancing performance.

- To analyze Technological capabilities that will be strategically accustomed, accomplish property with competitive advantage and also the implementation of those technology is associate structure transformation method, during which labor price, structure, culture, competition strategy and arrangement of individuals all can amendment to compatible with one another. The key to triple-crown AMT implementation seems to be the collaboration of acceptable factors and their integration which will supply most advantages from AMT implementation.

- To gain fundamental insight into the framework which will present the intra/inter-relationship among the variables influencing company performance in parallel with technology utilization that may be analyzed and offers testable propositions.

- This research suggests that utilization of AMT won't additionally necessary issue that guarantee performance however any need acceptable changes within the firm’s structure and infrastructure can and continue with performance appraisal to enhance company capability.

- To implement intra/inter relationship framework for manufacturing process.